USSA rep says unity needed

Nebraska students statewide must organize if they're to be successful in lobbying state lawmakers.

That was the message presented Thursday by Doug Tuthill, national chairperson of the United States Student Association.

Speaking before members of UNO's student government in the Student Center, Tuthill stressed the value of organizing Nebraska colleges into a common representative organization. Tuthill also described the ways in which state students could benefit from joining the United States Student Association.

The organization, based in Washington D.C., was characterized by Tuthill as a non-profit organization representing 3.5 million college students across the country through member student governments and state associations.

He pointed to a recent piece of national legislation which was defeated in the Senate as an example of the need for Nebraska students to organize. The legislation would have provided "about $1 billion" in aid to students, he said. However, the bill was defeated by the margin of one vote, Tuthill said, adding both Nebraska senators voted against the bill.

"If Nebraska students were organized, that legislation might have passed," he said.

The Florida University graduate said the USSA could assist a Nebraska student organization with information regarding important legislation, lobbying techniques, and methods of developing student services.

Tuthill said the USSA also provides information on handicapped student's rights, women's rights and third world issues including affirmative action.

Tuthill said though that before joining the national organization, the most important thing to accomplish was organizing Nebraska students. The chairperson said Nebraska is one of only six states that does not have a state student organization.

If established, the organization would represent the interests of all Nebraska college students on issues of mutual concern. He added students' greatest leverage in influencing state legislatures comes in the form of their vote.

"Legislators will listen if they know your organization represents a large voting block," he said.

The state organization, if established, would represent the interests of all Nebraska students, he said.

Prior to creation of the state organization, students from individual campuses would vote on whether they wanted their school to become part of the organization, according to the chairperson.

A state organization would then have the option of joining the USSA, he said. Tuthill added though, the national organization would support the Nebraska student organization even if it did not become part of the USSA.

"The most important thing is to become organized," he said.

Regent negotiator responds to AAUP

By MARK DIRKSCHNEIDER
Gateway Editor

Lincoln lawyer Bruce Wright responded Friday to comments made by a national representative of the American Association of University Professors last week.

Wright said AAUP representative Dr. Sally McCracken's statement that the Board of Regents is to blame for slow progress in the negotiations was "unfortunate."

The national AAUP representative claimed that Regents were unfamiliar with national trends in collegiate negotiations. Wright said, though, that each negotiation should be "viewed on its own."

"It's not unusual for these sort of negotiations to take a long time," he said.

The Lincoln lawyer said the AAUP's claim that faculty governance rights are contractually guaranteed on "about 60" campuses nationwide was a "gross oversimplification."

The lawyer pointed to New Jersey as an example of a state in which governance rights are legally unnegotiable, and added the governance issue should "function in its historic and traditional role."

Wright said the Regents are responsible for determining governance issues according to Nebraska state law.

"I question whether they even have the legal right to negotiate these responsibilities away," he said.

The lawyer also disputed local AAUP claims that they are asking for only a 15 percent salary increase. Wright said when the union's economic proposals are considered "in the aggregate" including fringe benefits, the total economic package "is closer to 25 percent."

He also said he believed it unfortunate the AAUP had decided to take a more public posture in their contract negotiations.

"I don't think they're being irresponsible. However, I hate to see the negotiations go from the negotiating table to the media."

He added he would characterize the negotiations as having made "very slow and limited progress" rather than being at a "stalemate" as described by the AAUP representative.

New Student Senate meets for first time

The freshly elected Student Senate convened for the first time Thursday night, approving a funding request and dealing with other student government issues.

The Senate approved a request by UNO student Jeff Folio for $200 to cover expenses such as transportation and lodging while in New York City. Folio placed first in a national advertising contest and will be traveling to New York to receive an award.

However, a request for $397 by UNO Student Director of Orientation Shirley Rosen, to attend a national conference of orientation directors in New Orleans, La. failed to receive the support necessary to pass. The Senate voted 14 to 10 (two senators abstained) to approve the request. However, approval of two-thirds of the Senate is required.

Several of those senators voting against the request expressed the belief that Rosen's position is administrative in nature. Therefore, the administration is responsible for absorbing the cost of the trip.

The Senate also decided to study further a proposal by Doug Tuthill of the United States Student Association that UNO consider participating in the creation of a statewide student organization (see adjoining story). A committee of seven senators was established to study the proposal.

Additionally, the senate agreed to vote next week on the committee chairman appointments made by Senate Speaker Steve Douglas.

The committee names and proposed chairmen are: Budget Committee, Mel Felton; Special Investigations, Mike Kohler; Committee on Committees, no recommendation; Executive Committee and Rules Committee, Steve Douglas (constitutionally mandated); Student Affairs, Fred Sgroi; Student Center Operations, Mark Norris; Special Committee on Duplication, Tammy Law. Additionally, Karen Kelly was appointed Sergeant At Arms.

Finally, the Senate approved the appointment of Mary Kingslan as Senate secretary. Kingslan had been serving as interim secretary.

Thurrow to speak

Dr. Lester Thurrow, professor of economics and management at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and author of the book "Zero-Sum Society," will speak at UNO's Academy, Business and Community (ABC) breakfast Monday, Nov. 17.

Thurrow, a former Rhodes scholar, received his doctorate from Harvard University where he taught briefly. Generally recognized as an authority on economic analysis and recovery, Thurrow was named one of "200 Rising Leaders" by Time magazine in 1974.

He is a former member of the President's Council of Economic Advisors, the National Commission for Manpower Policy, the NAACP Economic Advisory Council and the Editorial Board of the New York Times.

He is currently an economics columnist for the Los Angeles Times and is the author of several books and articles relating to economics issues.

His book, "Zero-Sum Society" has received critical acclaim as "the book to have read, to be reading or to plan to read," (Forbes, July 7, 1980). The book focuses on the political and economic institutions which inhibit necessary economic growth and change and outlines Thurrow's plan for recovery. He is also the author of "The Economic Problem" and "The Impact of Taxes on the American Economy."

The ABC breakfast will be held at 7:30 a.m. in the Holiday Inn High Rise, 69th and Grover Streets. letters Pro Langford

Dear Friends,

I would like to express my most sincere thanks to all who supported me in my race for Student President/Regent. I have no regrets as I know we addressed important issues, ran a clean and honest campaign and worked hard to earn the support we gained. I also congratulate Ron Wanek on a well run campaign. The greatest honor for me was the opportunity to meet literally thousands of my fellow students.

For the reasons expressed above, since I have served in Student Government for three years, and since representatives of both candidates have asked for my support, I feel moved to make an endorsement in this race.

For all the time I have been in the Student Senate the same cadre, all with sympathies for the soft politics of the administration, have controlled our vital Lincoln representation.

We must send to the Regents a student with courage, with concern for all students, (don't be fooled by false, racist, or divisive remarks that one candidate would represent only black students,) with the ability to articulate our concerns, and the compassion to be a just and fair leader.

After a great deal of thought, I strongly urge those who supported me and all other students to join me in voting for FLORENE LANGFORD for STUDENT PRESIDENT/REGENT. For UNO, for the future, please vote.

Sincerely yours,
GARY DISILVESTRO

Officers support Pfeffer

To the Editor:

Upon reading the "Commentary" section in Friday's Gateway, one might conclude that UNO students are being forced to choose between an innovative mind and a purely economic one in the upcoming Student President/Regent election. If this were an accurate assessment of the respective candidates' abilities, the choice would not be difficult. We were dismayed to find that not only had the Gateway not fully endorsed Mark Pfeffer, but had actually characterized him as an economic theorist and thereby not worthy of the campus newspaper's support. The Gateway itself would be in the red if it weren't for Mark's efforts to increase the allocation to the paper beyond the Gateway's initial fund request.

In fact, through our various dealings with Mark we have noted an impressive understanding of Student Government workings and university structure as a whole in addition to his ability to accomplish major feats for the benefit of the entire student body.

Mark is not only realistic, knowledgeable, practical and innovative, he has demonstrated real interest and dedication in the students at UNO through the positions he has held as well as the one he is pursuing. Instead of recommending the usual

'task force' study, which inevitably leads to nothing, Mark has proven his interest to benefit UNO by writing legislation to aid the students. One example of this is the creation of the Student Legal Assistance Service.

In order to be an effective President/Regent, a candidate must be knowledgeable, concerned, dedicated and articulate. We are confident that Mark Pfeffer possesses these qualities in great magnitude. We support him wholeheartedly and urge students with enlightened self-interest to do the same.

Democrats need revitalization

Reagan win signals need for fresh strain of liberalism

By JOSEPH BRENNAN
Gateway Columnist

The Reagan landslide has no doubt left many shellshocked. The size of his victory, coupled with the election of a Republican majority in the Senate, surely signals a drastic change in the manner in which the business of the government will be conducted. It remains to be seen if Reagan represents a Republican "New Deal" as many journalists have suggested, but nonetheless, we haven't experienced such shockwaves in American politics for a long time.

So we are stuck with Mr. Reagan for at least four years, perhaps less — many folks rather uncharitably suggesting or hoping that the president-elect choke on his jelly beans or drop dead on inauguration day. We have had many mediocre presidents (Mr. Carter being the latest) but rarely one so mediocre and lacking in intelligence. Reagan made much of the fact that he governed California for eight years, a state, he constantly reminded us, which would rank as the seventh largest country in the world, if of course it was a country. Unfortunately, being governor of California is not the same as being president. The president-elect has given no indication so far of understanding this, in much the same way President Carter never understood the difference between Georgia and Washington, D.C. Reagan come to Washington under the same illusion Carter did — believing that amiability, an anti-government attitude, and a longing for some mythical past is the road to the promised land.

It is a safe bet that after the initial euphoria of the new administration — when the honeymoon ends — the problems which confront our country and the world may strike Reagan as not being as easily solved as they are on the blackboards and in textbooks. It is then, I think, that we will be able to measure Reagan's character — if he truly possesses the intangible quality of leadership so lacking in America in recent years. Our new president leaves me uneasy, hesitant, worried. Perhaps he will, as storybook history lessons in grade school told me, "rise to the occasion."

If the election of Reagan distresses some of you, direct your attention to a far more serious matter: The giddiness and arrogance of the many interest groups which unite under the banner of the "New Right." These groups saw in Reagan the messiah, the man who would restore all of the virtues vanished from American life. The one-issue constituencies they represent have found a friend in Reagan, or so they believe. They were instrumental in the defeats of the prominent Senate liberals swept out of office. And they displayed a vindictiveness not seen since the days of Watergate when many wanted to string Richard Nixon up.

The day after the election, Paul Weyrich, leader of the right wing kook group called "Committee for the Survival of a Free Congress," warned Reagan not to become too "liberal", vowed to scrutinize that known left winger George Bush, and suggested that liberal politicians running for office in 1982 start quaking in their boots or simply give up, and not stir the wrath of Moral Majority and Christian Voice. Conservative George Will pegged the New Right as "insufferable" winners, which puts it mildly.

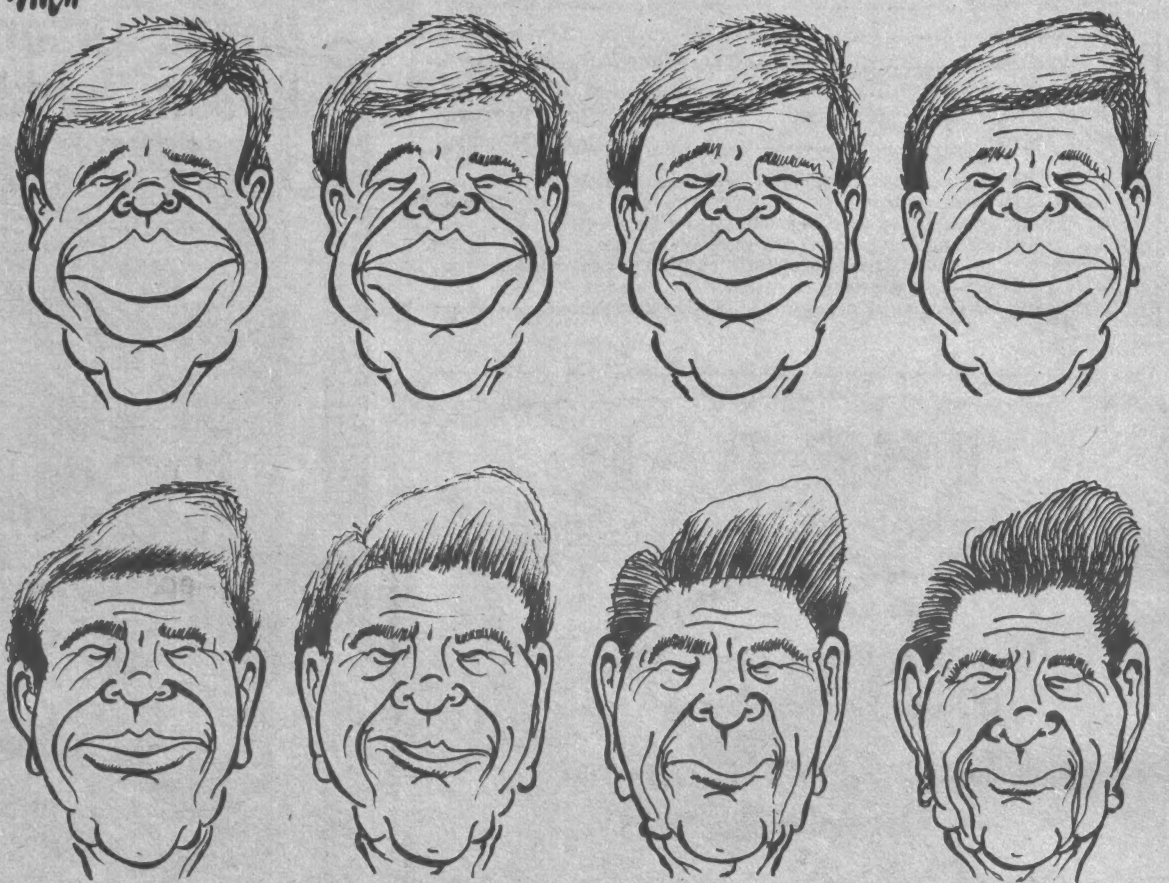

The New Right represents the worst in American politics — crushing dogma, humorlessness, ignorance. With checklist in hand they claim to speak for the "individual" but in reality champion something called Amercanism and conformity. Voting the "right" way secures a spot in heaven they believe, intolerance is their creed, "Christian America" their battle cry. They deserve opposition by all rational human beings, be they liberal, conservative, or moderate. We are in trouble if Reagan becomes slave to their every whim.

The Democratic party should fear not only the New Right but their own stagnation. The Republican landslide does offer the party a chance to regroup and revitalize. It is essential that the yoke of knee-jerk New Deal liberalism be discarded. This is not to suggest that the party abandon its fundamental principles but that it does need a fresh dose of ideas. Many who voted for Reagan did so out of frustration at the Democrats; the old Democratic formula for solving problems, it would appear, has been repudiated.

Vice-president Mondale and Sen. Kennedy are likely to vie for the role of leader of the opposition. They should be in the forefront of redefining liberalism and the party's goals. If they don't, Reagan-style government may be with us longer than we care to admit.

Langford endorsed in Regent runoff

By CORNELIUS GAINES
Gateway Columnist

Last year, Florene Langford ran for the position of Student President/Regent. She ran a clean campaign. However, the election results were handled with dirty hands. Four votes prevented her from being included in the run-off election between Mike Smith and Katie Rinn. This was a controversial incident which to date has never been clarified.

When this incident occurred, it was dismissed as an unusual and unintentional incident. This year the same thing has happened again, but in a more blatant form.

When this year's election was over and the votes counted, Florene had 310 votes. Her closest opponent (Mark Pfeffer) had 301 votes. But this was only a temporary reality. A supposedly "missing tally sheet" was found a week later, which helped Pfeffer. At this point, Pfeffer had 355 votes to Langford's 341 votes. Many people who worked very hard for Florene's campaign were furious, because they remembered what happened last year.

Although Florene's campaign workers were very angry and frustrated, they took the bad news with a grain of salt and continued to run an honest campaign. This illustrates the high energy in the Langford camp.

The ballot box incident is only one negative which affected Florene's campaign. On Monday, Nov. 3, Florene parked her car on campus, and when she returned, she found her tires slashed. This action was very depressing for Florene. But she found strength to continue her campaign.

Florene's campaign has been designed to unify students on campus and not divide them. This can be seen in the broad representation of her endorsements. Florene has gained support from agencies such as UNO Gateway, the Goodrich Department and many in between. Does this reflect the black vote only?

gave support

At a rally held on Friday Nov. 7 for Florene's campaign, Gary DiSilvestro, a former candidate for President/Regent gave his support to Florene. He spoke of the need to unify students on campus and to send an effective individual to Lincoln to represent UNO. He added that Florene was the best choice. Now can you think of one black who has spoken in favor of Pfeffer's campaign? I can't. I guess that's because Florene's trying to bring blacks and whites together and not divide them any more than they are divided presently.

Florene's platform projects the concept of unity on campus and the development of a lobby group to go to Lincoln and seek changes to benefit ALL STUDENTS at UNO. On the other hand, Mark's platform emphasizes economics over all concerns. He is supported by Mike Smith, Katie Rinn (current president/regent) and John Kirk. Florene is supported by the groups mentioned earlier and Delta Sigma Theta, Omega Psi Phi and others.

There are many of you who really want to see a better day for students and who know that Florene can assist you in bringing about that change. If you do vote for her, together we will make history at UNO.

Visitor Permits — Violations

Visitors to the UNO Campus may obtain Temporary Parking Permits from the Campus Security Office or the department/person they wish to visit. It is essential that all information be filled in by the department or visitor when the Temporary Permit is issued through a source other than the Campus Security Department.

Should the visitor, with or without a Temporary Parking Permit, receive a Violation Notice he/she must fill-in the reverse side of the Violation Notice and return it to the Campus Security Department within five (5) days of the date the violation was issued. Visitors may have two (2) violations, per year, vacated before they are subject to payment of parking violations.

Community individuals who frequently drive on campus may obtain an Annual Visitor Permit, free of charge, if they are not affiliated in any way with the University. A Visitor Permit allows the individual to park in either Faculty/Staff or Student Parking Lots.

Methods of Transportation

The number of individuals driving alone in one vehicle is quite high. During my late afternoon treks to the Crossroads to catch the bus home, I've counted 75-80 vehicles out of 100 with the driver as the sole occupant.

I realize it is very gratifying to be able to leave a few minutes early or late for work and have transportation available anytime during the day. However, due to monthly gasoline costs, I have reduced my singular use of a vehicle considerably during the past few weeks.

The following table shows a comparison of costs between driving (9 mile rd. trip) and riding the bus for one day, a week, and a month. Vehicle costs are rated at 32¢ per mile for a medium-sized vehicle.

Transportation

	1 day	1 week	1 month
Vehicle (.32 per mile)	$2.88	$14.50	$57.60
Mat Bus (.12 per mile)	1.10	5.50	22.00
Savings by riding bus			$35.60

I certainly can get by without a vehicle during the day, can you? Investigate bus routes in your neighborhood. Maybe you can change your method of transportation and save fuel and transportation costs.

Primer for New Right Way re-education of blacks

By MATTHEW STELLY
Gateway Columnist

For those of you who do not yet know it — or who are still too shocked to accept it — Ronald Reagan is now the president of the United States. For now, that is, until George decides to give some of his old CIA cronies a call and have Ronnie's milk spiked with two ounces of Raid.

But let's not get ahead of ourselves. We are talking about the next four years of America — the New Right Way. The New Right Way, among other things, includes the proper ways to talk, walk, act, think, buy, vote and so on. And the New Right Way also has the Right Way for minorities — especially blacks — to talk, walk, act, think, buy, vote and so on. This article will discuss these new attitudes and actions, and show how to stay in Ronnie's good graces and out of the nearest penitentiary.

First, one has to accept the new Right Way re-education process. I say re-education because during the 60s, we began to receive the first real education since our arrival to these shores. The re-education under the Right Way, however, seeks to take us back to those good days of the plantation, the overseer and of course, the ever lovin' massa that Ronnie is a twentieth century manifestation of.

mis-educated

Once out of high school, where he has been mis-educated for some twelve years, the New Negro must stand tall — in his platform shoes. He must be proud — that he can pay his exorbitant rent to ol' Regency. But there are also key courses that the New Negro can take that will further enhance his chances of finding a job here in New America.

Counselors — all Reaganites — might strongly suggest such core classes as Tomming 101. While there are blacks even here at UNO who have already passed this course with straight A's, the course has been revamped under Ronnie's New Negro Curriculum Policies.

These policies modify the Tomming 101 course and have broken

this course into labs (for a lower Negro-to-teacher ratio). There are three labs, and they are Shuffling 150 (which deals with how to walk in the famed Mantan Moreland Strut), Fine Arts 232, which is called "Special Topics: Negroes and Natural Rhythm" and last but certainly not least, Anglophilia 400. This latter upper division lab teaches black youth such key facts as "blonds have more fun," "black cats bring bad luck," and one sure to land a job in Ronnie-land, "De White Mon Been Berry, Berry Good To Me." The course will be taught by long time Republican, Chico Escuela.

assist blacks

The Right Way Re-education Program is designed to assist blacks in discovering their true identities. According to one Reagan aid, "Blacks aren't really black — they're brown. Therefore as Republicans, we

Women Confront Violence

In recent years it has become evident that violence is a serious problem in American family life. Intro-family relationships need to be strengthened and communication restored. The series of programs entitled "Women Confront Violence" is one step in the continuing struggle for a stronger and safer American family.

The issue of violence in family life must be confronted, and those participating in these unhealthy patterns of behavior must be made aware of the consequences and alternatives.

The following week of programming is presented in the hope that it may lend guidance to help with the destructive cycle of violence and direct the victims to a healthier and more positive family lifestyle.

have to make sure that they become Negroes which is a name I know they'd prefer." Jesse Jackson, head of the newly formed Negroes United To Save Youth (NUTSY) agreed. In his typically poetic fashion, Jackson stated, "We must understand that the man's plan is grand. We don't need land or a helping hand — we need some sand."

Jackson is alluding to the fact that under the New Right Way Swivel Rights Act of 1981, Negroes will be allowed — for the first time — to own property in the middle of the Mojave Desert.

"We're very happy to have a man who would set such a precedent," began Deformative Action Officer Richard Pryor. "That is some of the best sand in the world."

Even though Reagan could not be reached for comment, the Right Way Re-education Program is soon to be carried out at every University and college in the United States. It is anticipated black students, feeling the fire of this new wave of Negro-ness, will form Buffoon Student's Unions (BSU), and the old Black Studies Departments will be replaced with Slave Analysis Centers.

One such center is already in existence in a city in Nebraska. The Director of the SAC is Sammy Davis Jr., who volunteers some twenty hours a week so that he can "bring back the good ol' days when blacks were Negroes and whites were glad of it." Davis adds an informative note that, "people always knockin' slavery, but at least back den we had food, clothing and shelter — for free!"

new option

That is one of the many informative facts that the SAC's seek to provide Negro and white students alike. But The New Right Way offers more in terms of religion in education.

Negroes will now be allowed the option of either going to school or to church. If they choose the former, they will undergo the fantastic curriculum we've outlined above. But if they choose the latter, they will be provided with an understanding of God that will make each one of them better human beings.

The religious schools, directed by David Duke (a reformed Klansman), are designed to help blacks pick themselves up by their own bootstraps. As Duke stated, "During the 60s and 70s, many blacks committed crimes against the majority — whether they knew it or not. They would blow up unused sticks of dynamite with their bodies, they ruined many tons of bullets by allowing themselves to be shot in the back, and perhaps worst of all, they put the economy into a hole by forcing policemen to arrest them, thereby taking up a lot of space in our prisons."

janitor III

Duke, who teaches a course in Negro Religion entitled, "Dem Good Ol' Blues Is Back Agin," also seemed pleased at the fact that Negroes can rise to the position of Janitor III. "I knew all the time that they would one day get what they really deserve," Duke began. "They used to be our slaves and worked for nothin'. Now they can rise up the level of Janitor III and get minimum wage. You got ta admit — that's progress."

Reagan is the idol of many Negroes, needless to say. However, there are groups of ungrateful "radicals" who are making such claims as "he's a racist," "he's gonna have us all in concentration camps" and the most often used one, "the guy's gonna croak any minute now, and Bush will have all our phones tapped."

Of course, these are utterly ridiculous to those of us who know Ronnie best. Now, like perhaps no other time, we can truthfully say, this country has never had a president like Reagan. And the world is never going to let the American people forget they elected him.

How lucky can a country get?

There's no such thing as a moral victory in the eyes of UNO football coach Sandy Buda. But his squad's gallant effort in Saturday's 17-0 loss to Division I power Drake in Des Moines "should give us confidence and some momentum," he allowed.

UNO will travel to Greeley, Colo. Saturday for the North Central Conference title showdown with Northern Colorado.

The Mavericks, fifth-rated in Division II rankings prior to the Drake game, put up a monumental struggle against the Bulldogs, who upped their record to 8-2 with the win.

"Our guys played the best they could and they fought hard all the way," said Buda, whose head coaching record dropped to 23-8 with the loss. The 7-2 Mavs lost a second consecutive game.

In a game

"Their coaches and players knew they were in a game. Drake's coach (Chuck) Shelton said on the radio after the game that we were better than four of five of the Division I teams his guys have played this year," Buda said.

"Before the game, their players were talking to ours on the field and saying how they were going to make it a long afternoon for us and re-write the national record books. But they knew we were around," Buda said.

"We gave a hell of a team one hell of a game. We should have confidence heading into the final game. We went to Drake to win and we had the opportunities to win," said Buda. The third-year coach said critical penalties and breakdowns on pass protection by the offensive line were key factors in the loss.

"We had good field position taken away from us often because of penalties. And we just couldn't protect the passer. Their defense came at us hard." The Mavs were flagged 11 times for 98 yards and were thrown for 53 yards in losses while trying to pass.

The Mavericks penetrated to the Drake 17 early in the second quarter but a clip and a 10-yard sack of McManigal knocked UNO back to the Drake 45.

Armchair quarterbacks may have emitted loud groans at Buda's decision to try a 62-yard field goal at that point — Mark Schlecht's kick was long enough but wide right — but Buda defended the decision.

"We had a 25-mile-per-hour wind behind us, and I felt it would have really given us a boost if he'd made it.

"I have to admit that I didn't realize it was that long a try. The field markings were hard to read but I knew it was longer than 50 yards," Buda said.

The coach added "their offense hadn't been able to move on our 'D,' so I decided to gamble. We knew that we'd have to gamble to win the game and, as it turned out, it didn't hurt us," he added.

The Bulldogs took over at the 45 after the missed kick but were forced to punt.

Shadows

The aggressive Bulldog defensive unit, which has lived in the shadows of the highly-touted offensive unit all year long, forced the Mavericks into a ballet offense — 1,2,3, kick — for a majority of the second period.

After several punt exchanges, the Bulldogs got a break when Schlecht shanked a four-yard punt off the side of his foot with 1:46 left in the half.

Casko dropped back and fired a cross-field bomb that fullback Talmadge Tanks caught and carried to the three yard line.

Bulldog hopes died on the next play, however, when Ware was belted at the line and fumbled into the endzone.

UNO cornerback Paul Bryant dropped on the ball and the Mavs took over at the 20-yard line with 1:29 remaining in the half.

But the Mavs couldn't run out the clock, thanks to Drake's wise use of timeouts. With about a minute to go in the half, second-team punter Tom Pate was called in to kick it away.

Facing a 10-man rush, Pate barely got the kick off.

UNO's hard-fought loss to Drake 'should give Mavericks momentum'

Leaping High... to deflect the last pass of the first half is Maverick defender Mark King (4), who was named UNO's defensive player of the game. Drake receiver is Pat Dunsmore (left).

The Bulldogs took over at their own 47 and again Casco went to work.

Eternity lasted a minute.

Casko got off eight throws in 56 second, hitting four of them for 29 yards. His seven-yard pitch to Ware on a fourth-and-six play from the UNO 35 kept the drive alive and the crowd on the edge of their seats.

The Maverick defense turned back the threat, however, as Mark King batted down a long pass at the goal line on the last play of the half.

The potent Drake offense accumulated only 146 yards in the first half with Casco accounting for most of those. Casco hit 7 of 17 passes for 99 yards and Drake rushers picked up 47 yards on 19 carries.

UNO's offense, meanwhile, wasn't having much success either. Despite several good rushing gains, UNO was unable to overcome the costly penalties that seemed to pop up after each significant gain.

The Mavs, who were held to 233 yards for the game, had only 79 of those yards in the first half.

45 yards

Reserve fullback Barry Leif had 45 yards on five carries in the first half but carried only three times for five yards after the break.

Sophomore quarterback Mark McManigal hit the cement-like turf seven times for 44 yards in losses in the first half. McManigal carried twice in the second half for a net loss of a yard.

UNO's fierce defense continued to bend at times but never broke until 30 seconds remained in the third quarter. Two plays after an unsuccessful fake punt by UNO, Drake halfback Amero Ware scooted up the middle on a dive play for a 49-yard scoring play which broke the scoreless deadlock.

Ware was met at the line of scrimmage by Maverick tackle Ted Jensen but he slipped out of Jensen's grasp and streaked to the goal line untouched to put the Bulldogs in front 7-0.

Momentum swung toward the Bulldogs and stayed with the Missouri Valley Conference foes the rest of the way.

The Bulldogs padded the lead on a 16-yard scoring pass from Casco to Talmadge Tanks. Casco, who entered the game as the nation's fifth leading passer and eighth-leading total yardage producer, hit Tanks on a screen to the left and the powerful fullback used his blockers well while bulling into the end zone. The kick made it 14-0.

Casko ended the day with 13 completions in 31 attempts for 174 yards. The senior signal-caller had been averaging 13 completions and 209 yards a game. His scoring toss to Tanks was his 16th of the year.

Good QB

"Casco is a good quarterback and he showed a lot of poise," said Buda. "But a lot of his stats were late stats that made him look as good as he was supposed to be."

Buda said the UNO defensive coverage took away Drake's favorite patterns — the outs, curls and deep patterns. "But they adjusted well and after the half they came out throwing to their backs a lot. We covered their wide receivers well in the first half."

Drake added a three-pointer when Henrik Mike-Mayer booted a 30-yard field goal with 4:38 left in the game. The 17 points scored by Drake was 16 below their season average of 33 points per game.

The Mavs fell just short of scoring on the last play of the game. Wide receiver K.R. Anderson caught a pass from quarterback K.S. Anderson and bulled his way down to the three before being brought down.

One aspect of the game that displeased Buda was the officiating.

He said the referees let Drake get away with too many spearing penalties. An unsportsmanlike call on linebacker Tom Sutko especially incensed the Maverick head coach.

A penalty flag was thrown when Sutko was held by a Drake offensive lineman. Sutko, who got up and watched Ware's 40-yard run downfield, picked up the flag and twirled it. The Mavs were assessed a 15-yard dead-ball foul which was stepped off after a half-the-distance holding call on Drake was assessed.

Twirling

"They'll call a guy for twirling a flag but not for spearing someone right in front of the ref. I don't understand it," said Buda.

Just before the game's end, some 1,500 jubilant Drake students tore down the goalposts in the Maverick endzone in celebration.

"This is the first time in a long while that Drake has won eight football games in a season," said Buda. "The fans were probably celebrating that." Drake was 3-8 a year ago.

Defensively, the Mavericks were led by defensive player of the game Mark King, who made 12 total tackles, broke up two passes and intercepted another. King nearly broke the return for a touchdown but was finally stopped after 37 yards.

Leif, who was cited not only for his rushing but for his play on the special teams, was named the offensive player of the game.

Despite the loss, Buda said the Mavericks' morale should be high heading into the Northern Colorado game.

The Bears, tied with UNO for the NCC lead with a 5-1 league mark and a 6-3 overall record, had an open date Saturday.

UNO, meanwhile, suffered several injuries against Drake, the most serious being an ankle injury to John Walker, starting defensive tackle.

"X-rays were negative but there could be some ligament damage," said Buda.

Asked if the NCC travel limit of 42 players imposed on visitors would hurt his team against Northern Colorado, Buda said, "I don't care if we play them in Greeley or in an alley in North Omaha, we're going to play them as hard as we can. We're going there to win."

Concentration, consistency propel Lady Mavs to v-ball title

By ERNIE MAY
Gateway Sports Writer

The concentration and consistent play which the Lady Mavs had been searching for all season arrived on the scene last weekend as they defeated the College of St. Mary 15-6, 15-11 to win the Nebraska AIAW Division II volleyball championship, their first under second-year coach Janice Kruger.

The win advances UNO into the Region 6 tournament Nov. 21-22, in Fargo, N.D. Second-place finisher CSM will also advance to the tourney.

Led by the play of Moe Frenking, Colette Shelton and Brenda Schnebel, the Lady Mavs swept through the tournament undefeated, avenging a second place finish in the tourney last year.

UNO opened on a high note by defeating CSM in pool play 15-10, 13-15, 15-3. Freshman Brenda Schnebel led the Lady Mavs in the opening game, recording 14 kill spikes, 12 sideouts and seven points.

Colette Shelton, who according to Kruger, "played excellent defense the entire tournament," also chipped in offensively, scoring eight points in the win over CSM.

The Lady Mavs had little trouble with Chadron State in the second game of pool play as they defeated the Eagles 15-7, 15-6 behind the play of Jean Wilwerding, Frenking and Shelton.

Wilwerding recorded six kill spikes, six points and two service aces, while Frenking recorded 12 assists and Shelton five kills and three points.

The win over Chadron set up an important early tournament confrontation against Nebraska Wesleyan, a team which had beaten UNO in three of their previous four meetings this season.

Against Wesleyan, the Lady Mavs were tested early, but, led by Frenking, Schnebel and senior Sherry Swanson, held on to win 15-11, 10-15, 15-5.

"When we beat Wesleyan I felt confident we could win the tournament," said Kruger. "The victory showed the girls they could take the tournament too. It was an important match."

The win over Wesleyan left UNO as the top seed in the tournament and gave the Lady Mavs the momentum they needed to breeze past Chadron in a semifinal rematch 15-4, 15-5.

Frenking and Shelton again led the UNO attack against the Eagles. Frenking recorded seven kill assists and three kill spikes and Shelton added four kill spikes and five points as Kruger cleared the Lady Mav bench, giving everyone an opportunity to play.

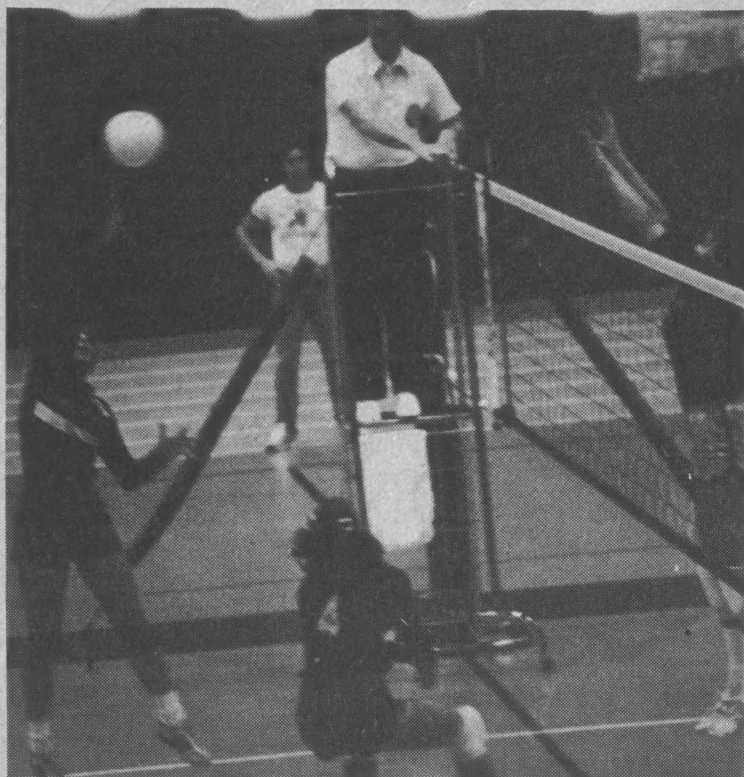

The Lady Mavs, playing their best volleyball of the season, then ousted CSM in the finals to win the championship.

Frenking led UNO with 13 assists, three service aces, four kills and five points against CSM, while Schnebel contributed five kills, four sideouts and six points.

"I thought it was a great team effort," said Kruger, reflecting back on the tournament. "I think every player shined at some point in the tournament. Colette (Shelton) played well defensively. Moe (Frenking) and Wendy (Melcher) did a good job of setting and Brenda (Schnebel) played well also."

"We were very consistent overall," she said, adding, "our transition game and counter attack went very well for us."

Ahead lies the tough Region 6 tournament, where the Lady Mavs, now 27-16-3, will attempt to prolong their season again by winning a berth into the Division II National tournament Dec. 11-13, at Cal.-State Northridge.

Swimming, diving club attracts many students

By ERNIE MAY
Gateway sports writer

Omaha has always been a hotbed for swimming in the state. In the past, however, those swimmers who wanted to continue their careers in college were forced out of town.

But now, with the Health Physical Education and Recreation building a reality, a UNO swimming and diving club has been formed, filling the huge void which existed in the past.

Under the direction of Paul Cerio, supervisor of aquatics at UNO, and Susie Kincade, women's Sports Information Director and former Olympic diver, the Maverick swimming and diving team began practice early this fall in preparation for their opening meet, which was scheduled for yesterday against Kearney State.

Club sport

According to Cerio, who will coach the swimmers, when the HPER facilities opened last January several students expressed interest in starting a swim team. After several organizational meetings a team was formed on club sport level.

Cerio said being a club sport as opposed to a varsity sport gives the team some flexibility. "We are not just restricted to NCAA meets," he said. "We can also participate in AAU meets such as the Great Plains Open."

So far this semester Cerio said he has had a good response from the students, but he added, "there is always room for more."

"The talent we have is fantastic," said Cerio. "There is a number of former state champions on the team. The only drawback is the quantity of people involved. Right now we have a total of 16-20 swimmers, men and women combined. We want at least 14 men and 14 women, that would round us into pretty good shape."

Leading the list of Maverick swimmers is Barb Slozr, Judy Ryan, Simone Gamache, Steve Miller, Mark Schweitz and Jim Rogers.

Slozr, a graduate of Omaha Northwest, will add some punch in the sprints. She was a state champ in the 50-meter freestyle during her days as a Huskie.

Ryan, a native of Bellevue, Neb., is "excellent in the individual medley and butterfly events," said Cerio. "She will really help our program."

Marian grad

Gamache, an Omaha Marian graduate, has been out of swimming for three years, but according to Cerio, she is a "good freestyle sprinter who will be heard from."

For the men, Mark Schwietz is surfacing as one of the best freestylers in the state.

A transfer from St. John's of Minn., Schwietz qualified for the NAIA Nationals in the 200-meter freestyle.

Steve Miller, another transfer student, attended UNL last year where he competed in the butterfly events.

Jim Rogers, who swam for Creighton Prep during his high school days, "will add a lot of freestyle expertise to our program," said Cerio.

In the diving end of the program Kincade is still struggling with numbers — she has just six divers.

Gary Cox and Rick Grhn lead the list for the men. Kincade said both Cox and Grhn have a lot of diving experience behind them and are ready to compete.

The final two divers for the men are John Wallace and John Morey.

"John (Wallace) has a way to go yet," said Kincade. "He has a lot of natural talent, but he doesn't have a complete list of competitive dives. He needs to work on some tougher ones."

Morey however, has been the surprise among the divers, said Kincade.

Competitively

"John (Morey) hasn't dove competitively before," she said, "but he is very coachable and has a positive attitude. He works like a dog during practice trying to learn a couple new dives each time. He's a real go-getter and he looks about ready to compete."

The two women on the diving team are Bridget Doyle, who finished third in the state for Omaha Marian last year, and Beth Maxwell.

Maxwell, like Wallace, has competed before and has experience. "She just needs to brush up on past dives and she'll be ready," Kincade said.

Doyle, on the other had, is probably one of the best divers around, according to Kincade.

"Bridget has her complete list of competitive dives," she said. "All she has left to do is work on her strength more to get higher in her dives. She is very graceful and will definitely give people a go at it."

Kincade said the biggest factor among her diving corps will be to become consistent in all their dives.

"Our high-board is probably where our weakest dives are," she said. "Like all divers who have been off for a while they tend to dive from the low board just for fun. We just have to work on it a little more is all."

Kincade said right now, however, "we will be competitive with the Division II teams on our schedule."

New program

Both Kincade and Cerio stressed the newly formed program is not a high pressure sport, it's a club operation.

"We're still taking swimmers and divers for the team," said Cerio. We're trying to build a broad base for our program. The broader the base the better the program will be.

"We want to expose more students to the new sport on campus and at the same time give people experience," Cerio said, adding, "The level of experience a swimmer or diver brings to the team makes no difference, it's still a new program."

Because it is a new program,

Cerio said not to expect the Mavs to light the world on fire.

"We have a lot of talent on the team," he said, "but like any new program the first step is always the hardest. We have to develop a reputation for having a good program."

"Both Susie and I are pleased with what we've seen and excited to get going. We have a good bunch of people to be associated with and we're ready to get started."
